GOVERNOR REFUSES
CITIES' AUTHORITY
TO PURCHASE, SELL

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Madison, May 16.—Governor Phillip La Follette vetoed the Chapel bill which authorized cities to buy or sell for inhabitants any of the common necessities of life on the ground the measure is unconstitutional. In support of his views, the governor quoted from supreme court decisions in many states.

On reconsideration of the bill by which the Everett bill to reduce the size of the board of control to three members, and eliminate the woman's member was killed, the measure was again killed 33 to 46. This disposes of the measure for session.

When the bill relating to manufacture and branding of skimmed milk cheese came up for consideration, Grall the author obtained unanimous consent to withdraw the measure.

Reconsideration was refused of the vote by which the assembly ordered to readjust a bill proportioning street railway taxes between county towns and states. The bill creating a board of real estate brokers for the purpose of realizing and giving examination to real estate men, was killed 40 to 36.

Several amendments were offered in the senate to the Whittet bill for central board of education which the measure came up in, and it was laid over for one week in order that the amendments may be printed. Indefinite postponement was given the substitute for income taxation bill which sought to remove in part the personal property offset on income tax.

The assembly engrossed the Grell bill regulating the inspection of agricultural feed and feeding stuffs shipped from other states.

The Schultz bill, giving cities power to run cold storage plants, was non-concurrent in because a similar measure giving the state dairy and food commission such power had already been passed.

The appropriation bill for Stout Educational Institute was concurred in.

Concurrent in the Wisconsin association measure creating a commission to pass a law regulating the price of foodstuffs, and the ordain resolution to increase the amount of flour used in milling wheat from 70 to 77 per cent of the seed was adopted.

The normal schools' appropriation bill increased by amendments from $81,000 to $98,000, was passed by the senate.

SEPTEMBER WHEAT
FORTY CENTS UNDER ADJUSTMENT PRICE

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago, May 16.—The wheat market broke sharply today on the restricted regulations adopted yesterday. September on initial sales declined an extreme of 17c to 2.04. This was 41 cents under adjustment price fixed by the board of trade.

The price curbing effects of restrictive regulation by grain exchanges was enhanced by warm weather today, and wheat futures by noon had shown further declines of from 23 to 24 cents. July dropped to $2.18, which is 57 cents cheaper than it was before the regulations went into effect. The decline carried September under the two dollar mark to $1.98, which is 41 cents under the maximum price fixed by the board of trade. The reduction applies only to futures, these provide the means of speculation. Actual wheat is still selling over $3.00 a bushel and is very hard to get.

To convey to the Russian people the gratification of the United States in the transformation of the despotism into a republican form of government and to render any helpful service it can to aid the new government rising from the ruins of the empire.

This statement was made today for the express purpose of meeting sinister misrepresentations by Germany in Russia, which are circulated to provoke some of the Russian factions into making a separate peace with Germany. Before the American commissioners can arrive in Petrograd, the mission is going to Russia as fast as railroad trains and steamships can carry them on what amounts to a race against time.

Animal Doctors in China.
Because of the fondness of the Chinese for animals the veterinary surgeon forms a class by himself. He treats horses, mules, donkeys, camels, cattle, dogs, cats, birds and goldfish. He has four principal prescriptions, each consisting of about a dozen different drugs and each efficacious according to the season of the year. Acces-cesses are punctured with steel needles, of which he has various forms. Dried lizards are good for horses suffering from pulmonary troubles. In giving medicines to a horse a special bit is used, by means of which the animal is tied up, and the concoction is poured into the mouth with an ox horn fashioned into a ladle.—Exchange.

GIVES ILLUSTRATED TALK ON LANDSCAPE GARDENING IN CITY

Landscape Architect Brought Here by Builders' Exchange in Interest- ing Lecture.

"American landscape gardening or popularly landscape architecture, is the most versatile school of that art ever developed," said Frank M. Edwards of Madison before a group of builders and property owners at the City Hall last evening. "Americans have not been content to speculate on the beautification of great estates or an occasional public park, but have carried their work into the tenement districts, to the offices of the city engineers, and to the home-builder everywhere." "America" has borrowed from the past, has profited from the beauty wrought in the Italian gardens of the Renaissance period, from the stately formality of the English estates, but has added to these the versatility of the American mind, and has ingeniously adapted the art to every sort of circumstance. I can say upon but a few of these it will be enough to show the importance into which the art of landscape architecture has come, the necessity for its coordination with any civic movement to improvement, of any householder's desire to beautify his grounds.

"The American art includes planning as well as beautification. One of the best examples of this is the evolution of the modern playground, a movement which sets aside a tract of property within the city, often the most congested districts, and makes upon it a place for children, a centre for their games, a playground where they are safe, and where their children's activities can be guided by competent directors. In some cases the backers of the playgrounds have realized the necessity and the educational value of incorporating with it the idea of beauty, and have consequently devoted part of the space to gardens and shrubs, often the only ones within miles of the district.

"Another phase of the versatility of American landscape architecture is the universal work of the backyard improvement programs. There is hardly a city or village in the United States which does not have its clean-up days, its boosting for beautifying backyards, for planting gardens, for making lawns, for making more sightly the alleyway, for converting the vacant lot into a miniature park, a playground, or a productive garden area. The amount of this work which has been carried on in the slums of our greater cities is surprising, usually started by a church, a school, or better still, a settlement, the movement becoming a nation, and before long every individual in the district is feeling a pride in the appearance of his property in cans and ash heaps disappear and in their place spring up vines and flower beds.

"The school garden is another expression of the great American impulse for beautification. Throughout the entire country schools are getting the interest of their pupils in the work and are forming garden clubs, starting vegetable and putting in gardens. This year, when the country is to face with a national emergency, the importance of school gardens has increased ten-fold. In Madison, for instance, there are 1500 gardens; of these 1000 are cultivated by adults, and the remainder by the school children. Nearly every child has a little plot in one of these gardens."

In a series of interesting lantern slides Mr. Edwards illustrated some of the fundamental principles of landscape architecture as applied to the garden of the average home, and as used in laying out roadways and parkways. The uses of various trees and shrubs, the manner in which they should be combined, and the various effects which can be obtained by the addition of a tree here or a shrub there were admirably shown in Mr. Edwards' pictures, collected from all over the country.

"In one eastern city, the people of a subdivision on one street put in the regulation curbs and gutters, while those on the next street where the lots were identical and the houses of much the same type, devoted the same amount of money to the planting of a lawn—in short, to making the street beautiful. As a result the rents on the latter street were raised forty percent above those on the street with the curb and gutters."

A few of the principals suggested and illustrated with slides were made with special reference to trees and their use in roadways. They should not be placed too close together. Roots should not be injured in laying walks and curbs; the trees should be carefully guarded against injury by the placing of iron guards; constant attention must be given that tree pests are eradicated; decay should be attended to at once by competent tree surgeons; their beauty should not be marred by a cluster of overhead wires; the type of tree should be carefully selected to fit the surroundings and to be hardy in the locality.

Other suggestions touched upon by Mr. Edwards were the circulation of propaganda for putting in window boxes throughout the entire downtown district, the placing of wires underground, the removing of unsightly signboards, the proper location of houses in the gardens with reference to the street building lines, juxtaposition of neighboring houses, and general effect. The construction of the house so as to leave as much natural beauty as possible.

Mr. Edwards is a landscape architect of considerable note, and has done much work both for cities and in the beautification of private estates throughout the east and the middle west. He has had charge of the improvement work in Madison and is at the head of the back yard and vacant lot garden movement in that city. He was brought here by the Builders' Exchange.

CONTINUE WORK FOR RIVER BANK CLEAN-UP

In spite of the dark clouds of war looming thick on our nation's horizon, the civic committee of the Commercial club, ably assisted by the civic committee of the City Federation of Commerce Clubs, has planned to do something in improving the river banks. They feel that with this eyesore in one of the most prominent places in our city, there is very little evidence of community pride, to show the transient visitor that we take pride in our home town.

The "kitchen middens" that decorate our river bank consisting as they do of ashes, rubbish and general refuse, are not only unsightly, but also a menace to sanitary conditions in hot weather. For the time being, in view of the war conditions now prevailing, the committee deemed it wise to modify the somewhat elaborate plans made at the beginning of the season. But a general cleaning up of the river bank is gradually down of the ashes, which a layer of top soil seems to grass, and the most unsightly of the buildings screened with vines and shrubs, is what the committee have in mind to attempt this season.

A soliciting committee of ladies has called on the merchants in mainly the downtown districts, and report very great interest in the project. Every one seems to feel as if this improvement is something long neglected, that should be done at once. This soliciting committee consisting of Mrs. Percy Munger and Mrs. T. O. Howe, have turned over funds amounting to $183 to finance this undertaking. A meeting of the combine committees will be called in a few days to decide on what shall be done.

The members of the Commercial club belonging to this committee are: Ed. American, chairman, and Messrs. F. L. Portenoy, Fred Green, Charles Fife and Father Willmann.

With C. V. Korch as advisory counsel.

The committee of ladies have Mrs. Percy Munger as chairman, and Mrs. T. O. Howe, Mrs. Fred Capelle, Mrs. Harry Blise and Mrs. J. F. Pennington, the other members of the committee.

Plans will be made and work put through as soon as possible.

PATRIOTISM.

It is not always the patriot who makes the most noise about the rights of this nation and demands that the government do something about this or that. The babbler brooks always makes the most noise while a deep stream runs smoothly and silently along until it becomes a raging torrent and then even the brook is silent.

It is the patriot who, if unable to go himself to the actual fighting front, plans that it may be easier for someone else who can. It is the patriot who stands ready personally and with his purse and judgment, to back up the administration. One way that many are showing their patriotism is by planning to purchase one of the Liberty war bonds. The man with a family to support, the farmer with the responsibility of raising crops may long to be in the thick of the war preparation, but remains at home. Patriotism is not counted by words, but actions. The man who drives his automobile through a company of soldiers drilling on the streets, because he has a right to the road, does not display the true brand of patriotism even though he talks loudly for the flag and its honor. The citizen, even though of foreign birth, who criticizes the government, makes disparaging remarks about the soldiers and possible success of plans under suggestion, is not a patriot even though he wears a flag in his buttonhole and professes to be an American citizen. It takes something more than talk and bluster to demonstrate true patriotism and the general public are not fooled in the least by actions of the "blow hard" who would stink any responsibility possible, but still exerts the right to annoy the public by his conversational powers in any line of discussion that may be brought up. There are thousands and thousands of men in this country dreaming with patriotism who hear nothing of, but the self-advertiser is always with us and his measure of national spirit could be measured by the thimble full.

EATING CORN.

The report of condition of the winter wheat crop is depressing, and there is sure to be a shortage, even if the spring wheat returns are good. But no disaster is necessary. Every acre can still be replanted to corn. In the end it may be an economic benefit, in spreading the corn-using habit more widely.

For some unexplained reasons the peoples of Europe have always had a prejudice against corn. While less than half of the world's wheat is produced in the United States, our country grows practically all the corn. Yet the experiment stations say that animals fed on corn alone thrive better than those fed on any one grain. It has all the elements of nutrition.

In the old days, fine white wheat flour was considered the only dainty luxury worthy of a gentleman's table. Of late years the preference for whole wheat bread has been growing. It does not look quite so pleasing to the eye as fine wheat bread. But it is valued for superior nutrition and a richer taste of the grain.

Many bakers find that they are constantly underestimating the demand for the whole wheat product. All they make seems to go as by magic, while the white bread is taken as a second choice. Similarly corn looks to the eye like a coarse food. But people will learn to like it just as they learn to like the whole wheat flour that is now so popular.

The South has always known its virtues, with corn bread and cake made in the most luscious forms. Hasty pudding was the cherished dish in a great many old-time families. A big corn crop this year will feed the hogs, will make poultry raising practical, and will be a long step toward winning the war.

A GERMAN REPUBLIC?

Dispatches from Berlin indicate that there is a strong feeling in that country that a republic might be formed which would give the people more to say about the affairs of the nation than they can otherwise have. Just how strong this sentiment is remains to be seen, but certainly after the experience of the present war, the scarcity of food supplies and the terrible slaughter of men, it would appear as though Germany was ready for a republic if any nation was. However, it is possible that the Kaiser has too strong a hold upon his subjects to fall into the trap that his imperial brother of Russia did and the plan may die in its inception. Until the German people rise in their might and exert the power they have in their own hands it is safe to say that this war will continue, and it will only be by some internal strife that any decided advantage is to be gained that will lead to peace and an end of the struggle of nations.

AFTER LIQUOR.

Congress is not going to take a back seat when it comes to liquor legislation. While this amendment to the espionage bill which referred directly to the use of grains in making distilled spirits was struck out of the bill when it came up for final passage, it is to be reintroduced in another form which will make it a clean-cut issue and bring forth a decided vote for or against. This is the opportunity of the foes of liquor to gain ground of advantage in their fight, and with half the nation practically dry now it would not be hard to secure passage of a law that would be the opening wedge for perpetual prohibition, although called a war measure at the present time. It is high time such a step was taken and now is the time to start the movement.

The largest picnic party of the season reported so far is the Russian army, which is enjoying a complete holiday at the expense of the people from whom the Russian government borrowed the money.

ARRAY AGAINST OTHER

Some Poles Have Taken Up Arms
With Russia, While Others Join
German and Austrian Armies.

London, May 16.—The ancient kingdom of Poland just now presents the attention of the world that waits to see which way the cat will jump.

It might be possible to express the situation in a more pleasant way, but the expression is that of Dr. Litwinski, spokesman for the Poles in London. Poland first caught in the mangle of the Russian advance and a German retreat and then in the mangle of the German advance and Russian retreat, probably has suffered as greatly as any country in Europe, not including Belgium or Serbia. A million and a half of her sons have been enrolled as volunteers, 800,000 in the Russian armies and 600,000 in the German and Austrian armies.

But Poland's position in present Weltpolitik is that of desperate neutrality. Both Germany and Russia have promised her much. Poland wants to cash some of those promises.

In the two, Russia offers the more complete independence. There is this grave risk. Dr. Litwinski expresses that Russia is promising independence to territory occupied by German troops.

And there is more or less of a string attached to Germany's proposal, which is a completely reunited Poland with its own local government under the wing of the German empire, somewhat like the position of Bavaria. The string is the unrelenting emphasis on the suggestion that Poland raise an army of her own against Russia.

"A reunited Poland would be a great betterment of our before-the-war situation," said Dr. Litwinski, "but what we want, of course, is both a united and independent country. We have been immensely encouraged by the recent manifesto of the new Russian government, though previous Russian assurances, naturally, did not impress us very much."

"Do you consider that President Wilson's mention of Poland in his discussion of possible peace terms has had effect?"

"Oh, colossal!" exclaimed Dr. Litwinski.

"Colossal!" echoed Dr. George Swetochowski. "Colossal, Colossal!" repeated the other Poles in the room.

"It was this way," said Dr. Swetochowski. "There's been a lot of generalizing about small nations and there's been some mention of Belgium and Serbia, but I wonder that nobody has ever gone. The case of Poland has been handled very gingerly. There has been the fear, perhaps, that it might be necessary to do a lot of compromising when it came to settle Poland's case. President Wilson left no room for doubt, so far as he was concerned; he declared it would be a reunited, autonomous, independent Poland. Now we know where we've got one real friend."

"Suppose it becomes an independent Poland, will it be a republic or a monarchy?"

"That is now uncertain. Hitherto the Poles have had in mind a new kingdom of Poland. But monarchies seem to be going out."

"But when once comes strong's Russia, where the democratic ideal has taken a real hold, undoubtedly the disposition would be to make Poland a republic. If through Germany, a limited monarchy would seem most likely—unless there is a decided change in Germany in the meantime."

If only the men had thought up the Pin idea first!

It it was up to a Woman to get a Collar, Shirt and Tie about her Neck and Environs she would do it in a Jiffy.

And there wouldn't be a Lump or wrinkle anywhere in the Picture.

Plus:

She takes a Heaping Teaspoonful of Pins and pins Things to anything that's fairly fast, even a Floating Rib.

Take a Man; he twists and yanks and pinches, he thinks he has his Shirt and Tie and Collar the way he wants them and then he sees them all Squirm around to where they were in the First Place.

It just makes one's Blood boil.

A pin is only a Little Thing, but at times there is something Noble about it.

Why didn't men think of Pins first?

The Daily Novelette

THE ADDER.

Cleopatra, lounging on her sumptuous tortoise-fur divan, suddenly raised her left eyebrow. (See Alexis Cludd's "Facial Oddities of Famous Women.") "No wonder I have trouble getting the right pins all the time," she muttered musingly. "I must be spending fortune entertaining Anthony! And he hasn't brought me so much as a box of studded dates for a month! I think I'll just count up what I've spent on that lately."

And she rang for slave and had him fetch her account book and her Hotbands' patent lightning adder. (See Patria Kelly's "Ancient Methods of Counting.")

"Gum," she gurgled, checking up the items. "H'm, $11.80, $14.50, h'm, so forth and so on, so on and such and such—total, $130.25. Well what do you know about that!"

And in a great huff, (see Garland Snee's "Thirteen Things That Cleopatra Used to Get Into"), she threw the patent adder on the third shelf (see Bessie Hines' "Construction of Highly Egyptian Lounging Rooms.") Or, strictly speaking, she merely threw it towards the third shelf, for it toppled down again and hit the top of her head between the index bone and the majella, killing her instantly. (See Ignew Bow's "The Sexes as Throwers.")

KEEP CHEERFUL.

It is not the truth to say that "kind words cost nothing." Every weary, sorely tried, disappointed, vexed spirit knows hours when they cost more than human sweetness. Unaided could give, but they are the more valuable for that. Do not let disappointment or reverses sour your nature.

Glass Windows.

The first glass window in England was put up in an abbey about the year 850. Glass windows, however, did not become general for many hundred years, and as late as 1579 the glass casements at Alnwick castle, the Duke of Northumberland's seat, were regularly taken down when the family was away from home.

The Spectroscope.

Originally the spectroscope was applied only to chemistry and in that limited field proved itself an invaluable aid in accurate analysis. By holding in a Bunsen flame a platinum wire moistened by contact with the skin the presence of a few grains of salt allowed a few minutes previously can be detected with the spectroscope. Indeed, so wonderfully refined is the work of the spectroscope chemist that he can discover in a substance the presence of one three-millionth of a grain of metal.

BIG CELEBRATION TO OPEN HOME SEASON

PARADE AND PATRIOTIC EXERCISES TO PRECEDE FIRST HOME GAME OF BALL CLUB NEXT SUNDAY.

TO MEET WHITEWATER

Game Promises to Be a Fast One—Manager Cole to Put Strong Line-up in Field.

All sport loving Janesville is expected to turn out for the first home game of the Cardinals in the Central State League next Sunday afternoon when the strong Whitewater team comes here. Elaborate plans are made by President William Langdon and the directors of the local club to make the celebration a city-wide affair.

Upon the arrival of the grounds, Company M will give an exhibition drill before the grandstand, and preliminary exercises will continue in a hall, while the "Old Glory" will be raised aloft on the flag pole to the accompaniment of the national anthem and patriotic singing by the crowd. Bob Dailey will sing a few selections and it is probable that a few remarks will be made by one of the more prominent in Janesville public life.

The game itself is scheduled to be a red hot contest from beginning to end. Manager Cole has been trying out the few weak spots which have developed in the team, and promises to offer the home rooters a stellar aggregation from battery to gardeners. Whitewater is reckoned as one of the strong teams in the league and a contend for first honors at the end of the season. Last week they informed Milwaukee in a close game by the score of 3 to 2, and then come to Janesville for the first time with blood in their eyes.

Old man Jim sneaked into the Card's camp last Sunday and managed to get in his dirty work in the first inning before he was driven out. They lost to the home team the first through a hard luck, and are now itching to retrieve their defeat in this, their first home game.

Neither Manager Cole nor President Langdon would divulge the line-up which will face the Whitewater pitchers next Sunday, but declared that they confidently predicted a string of players that would more than satisfy the fans.

A big delegation will be over from Whitewater to root their team as near to victory as lung power can, and backers of the Cardinals make an earnest plea to Janesville fans and to the general public to support the home team in this game. The battle is scheduled to last half past two, immediately following the patriotic exercises at the fair grounds. Get in the big parade, either or foot or in a car.

OBITUARY.

William Peters.

Last rites over the remains of the late William Peters were read at four o'clock this afternoon at the home of 215 Linn street, the Rev. John McKinney, pastor of First church, officiating. The home was crowded with many friends and acquaintances of Mr. Peters, and the floral offerings were many and beautiful and mute evidence of the high esteem in which he was held. Members of the L. A. Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and members of the brotherhood attended the services in a body. The remains were tenderly laid to rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery. HINT INJUNCTION

MAY BE INVOKED TO PREVENT THE WORK

North Bluff Street Residents Apparently Opposed to Building New Street.

There was a lively session of the Board of Public Works and some fifty property-owners on South Franklin and North Bluff streets at the city hall last evening and a hint was given that if the city continued to hold that the North Bluff street should be improved the injunction staying all work would be held for. The meeting had been called to decide what kind of a top dressing should be used on the streets in question, but the evening was spent in the most part devoted to arguments pro and con that the streets should not be constructed at this time owing to the increased cost of material and to the war time prices on every commodity.

At the request of various property owners City Engineer Kerch read figures as to the cost of similar streets that is being done in adjacent cities, particularly Beloit, and after the estimates that had been carefully worked out were given, just what the result of the meeting was.

Recently two men who were badly in need of shoes and were not able to buy new ones. We were able to supply them from the goods that had been sent in. We also have supplied several families who were not able to buy goods. It had not been for the goods that we kept on hand they would have had to go without. This is the time when we do all that we can to help the poor.

The threat of an injunction to stop the work was really a surprise and there seems to be considerable difference of opinion as to what effect it would have should it be decided to carry out the original plans. It is probable that the streets are to be built as asphaltic concrete will be the material used as this comes nearer to a reasonable price than any other material that can be obtained.

REVOLT IN GERMANY LOOMS AS HOLLWEG SIDE-STEPS DEMANDS

(By Associated Press)

Berlin, via London, May 16.—The Socialist leader, George Ledebur, declared in the Reichstag on Tuesday that it was impossible for Germany to win a war of subjugation, and exposed the country to the conclusion that a revolution must happen in Germany as it had happened in Russia as it had happened in Russia.

"We shall propose a constitutional committee," he said, "to take preparatory steps in the direction of introducing a republic in Germany."

Hollweg Sidesteps issue.

In one of the most vigorous and plain spoken speeches he has yet made before the Reichstag, since the outbreak of the war, the imperial German chancellor on Tuesday bluntly refused to enter into a discussion of Germany's peace aims as demanded in interpellations by the conservatives and socialists. Dr. von Bismarck-Hollweg asserted that the cause of the government's specific peace program, the announcement of which would at the present time, not only be premature, but which it would be difficult to formulate and also of no practical service to the nation in the present situation.

While appreciating the passionate desire of all classes to know the government's views, the chancellor plainly declared that he would not permit himself to be swayed by pressure from any source, and that he was not under the spell of any party or clique.

The best interests of the nation, he believed, demanded that the reticence he had imposed on himself in the face of continuous clamor since December 1916, should continue by him until the moment was ripe. He was sure that such a course would be endorsed by the nation at large, which continued to rally around its emperor, and would also meet the views of a majority in the Reichstag.

Declines to Comply.

"These interpellations demand from me a definite statement on the question of our war aims," said the chancellor. "To make such a statement at the present moment would not serve the country's interests. I must therefore decline to make it."

"I thoroughly and fully understand the passionate interest of the people in the war aims and peace conditions. I understand the call for clearness which today is addressed to me from the right and left. But in the discussion of our war aims the only guiding line for me is the early and satisfactory conclusion of the war. Beyond that I can do or say anything."

Will Keep Reserve.

"If the general situation forces me to reveal all, then I say now, I shall keep all I have and no pressure either from Herr Scheidemann or Herr Bismarck will force me from my path. I shall not allow myself to be led astray by utterances with which Scheidemann, at a time when drumfire sounds on the Alsace and at Arras, believes he could spread among the people the possibility of a revolution. German people will be with me in condoning such utterances, and also Bismarck's attempt to represent me as being under the influence of the social democrats."

"I am not in the hands of any party, either the right or the left. If I am in the hands of any one, I am in the hands of my people, and I hope so long as fighting is the existence of the nation, am firmly ranged round the Kaiser, whom they trust and who trusts them. The Kaiser's word of August lives unaltered. Bismarck has received the assurance of the unaltered existence of the Kaiser's word."

Hope for Support.

"I trust that the reserve which I must exercise—it would be unscrupulous on my part did I not exercise it—will find support from the bulk of the Reichstag and also amongst the people. These have been waiting on the west front. The entire people with all its thoughts and sorrows and feelings is with its sons up there, who, with unexampled tenacity and defiance of death, resist the daily attacks of the English and French."

"Even today, see no readiness for peace on the part of England or France, nothing of the abandonment of their excessive aims of conquest and economic destruction."

To Give No Formula.

"Shall I nail down the German empire in all directions by a one-sided formula which only comprises one part of the total peace conditions and which renounces successes won by the blood of our sons and brothers and leaves all other matters in suspense?"

"No. I will not pursue such a policy. That would be equivalent to surrendering the future of the fatherland."

"As regards Russia, I have already recently spoken. Whether Russia will or can act in the same sense on her behalf I am unable to estimate. Unless England with the assistance of her allies is destroyed, all her efforts to keep Russia harnessed to England's war chariot and traverse Russia's wishes for the speedy restoration of the world peace."

"If, however, Russia wants to prevent further bloodshed and renounce all violent plans of conquest for herself, if she wants to restore durable relations of peaceful life side by side with us, then surely it is a matter of course that we as we share this wish, will not disturb the permanent relationship of the future and will not render its development impossible by demands which, indeed, do not accord with the freedom of nations and would deposit in the Russian nation the germ of anarchy."

"I doubt not that an agreement, aiming exclusively at a mutual understanding, could be attained which excludes every thought of oppression which would leave behind no sting and no discord."

On Rearing Daughters.

Another thing that makes us tired is the mother who goes to her daughter's room at 10 o'clock in the morning and says, "Get up, dear; your breakfast is ready." Our idea is that daughter ought to be fetching batterscapes in from the kitchen at 7:30 and getting the old man in good humor for his day's work.—Houston Post.

LAUGHTER.

Relieve the tension of life now and then with a hearty laugh. Laughter is a most healthful exertion. It is one of the greatest helps to digestion with which I am acquainted, and the custom prevalent among our forefathers of exciting it at table by jesters and buffoons was founded on true medical principles.—Dr. Hufeland.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Pear Mrs. Thompson: Some time ago I went with a young lady, about twenty years of age, and I loved her dearly. I went so far as to ask her for her hand in marriage. I asked her mother, who refused to give her daughter up on account of my being poor.

"I'm not a wealthy people. Her mother also listened to other people, who said I was shiftless. I could prove that I was not shiftless, and wanted to find out who was so good. The party was so I could sue for damages, but her mother would not tell.

(1) Do you think her mother did right when I am a respectable, Christian young man to listen to other people and dictate to her daughter whom she should marry? I have told the girl to dislike me too. Do you think the girl is since she listened to her mother?

(3) The girl calls me up and writes sometimes, but she never invites me to call. Do you think I should ask to call, as I love her dearly? Or should I wait for her to get homesick so that she will treat me right and not listen to other people?

(1) Since the mother had the interest of her daughter at heart she did the right thing when she tried to prevent a marriage that she thought would not be happy. If you want the work for her. If you put your whole soul into your work, and study to improve your methods, you are bound to make more money. The mother probably knows how much her daughter spends and realizes that you could not satisfy her wants. A wealthy girl is very rarely happy when she marries a poor man.

(3) The girl did not love you enough to marry you or she would not have listened to her mother. Open your eyes to the truth.

THE VOICE OF ELIE.

Elie Metchnikoff has been dead nearly a year now but his name is still used to bolster up methods he never advocated.

"The Prolongation of Life" he wrote: "As in all the known soured milks the lactic bacilli are associated with a rich flora in which pernicious microbes may be met... that the soured milk should first be boiled and rapidly cooled, pure cultures of the lactic bacilli (Bulgarian bacilli) are soon grown in it in sufficient quantities to prevent the germination of spores already in the milk and not destroyed in the process of boiling. The fermentation lasts a number of hours, varying according to temperature, finally produces a sour curdled milk, pleasant to the taste and active in preventing intestinal putrefaction. The milk taken daily in quantities of a pint, controls the action of the intestine, and stimulates the kidneys favorably. It can be recommended in several skin diseases."

"A large portion of the casein is rendered soluble during the fermentation. Of the phosphate of lime, 60 per cent is rendered soluble. Those persons who cannot take milk may swallow the bacilli in a pure culture with jam, sweetmeats, etc. Cultures may also be made in vegetable broths or animal peptone to which sugar has been added. The microbes need sugar to produce lactic acid."

"It will be true that our proctococcal and unchaste old age is due to poison and disease (the greater part of the poisoning coming from the large intestine inhabited by numberless microbes); it is clear that agents which arrest intestinal putrefaction must at the same time postpone and annihilate old age."

Nowhere does Professor Metchnikoff express a preference for any particular kind of Bulgarian bacilli. He was, however, not a merchant.

From time immemorial human beings have absorbed quantities of lactic microbes by consuming in the uncooked condition substances such as soured milk, kefir, sauerkraut, etc. ANSWER.—My opinion without having first examined you would scarcely worth a stamp to you. Let the dentist decide. He ought to know what to do to those septic foal.

The Business of Living

Eleanor. Scents a Romance, With Patty and Mr. Friedly as its Central Figures.

"Do you know I think Mr. Friedly is interested in our Patty. I am pluming myself on being a successful matchmaker." Eleanor sat by the library table with her mending basket by her side.

"Being a mere man I have discovered nothing but the fact that the young chap has taken her out a few times and she has been decently civil to him." This in a sort of superriority that always ruffled Eleanor. Douglas resumed his paper.

"Women have more sensitive noses than men when it comes to smelling out such things as this," said Eleanor.

"It is very easy to believe what we have made up in our minds must be true," was the lofty answer as Douglas continued to read.

"Patty was very much interested in Aunt Laura's opinion of him and—All of which proves" Douglas told his paper noisily.

"That she is interested," retorted Douglas. "Does it? And what then?"

"Don't be disgruntled, Douglas. Just because you say now, I shall feel disappointed if this does not prove to be a match," continued Eleanor.

"I know it," Douglas smiled at her over the top of his paper. "Listen to ronson."

"Meading a man's point of view?" scoffed Eleanor. Douglas waved the interruption aside. "Friedly is thirty-three or thereabout and a man of that age is not easily bowled over."

plush on many things, and it is not the things one has that makes one happy. You know that dear."

"I know I have the bravest, cheeriest little wife in the world, and that she deserves an excellent financial position. I am able to give her," Douglas threw the paper on the floor and reaching for his wife's hand drew her to his knee.

"I know I would not be worthy of your love if I was not glad to share your life, sunshine and shadow alike, knowing that you give me with your love your best efforts to make me comfortable and happy," said Eleanor. (To be continued.)

Household Hints

HOW TO MAKE AN ICELESS REFRIGERATOR

Refrigerators can be made to do their part in conserving food this summer. Preserving milk, butter and other supplies and keeping vegetables and unripe portions of fruits are not difficult. The iceless refrigerator, however, is easily constructed. Women demonstrators in extension work of the United States department of agriculture tell how to make such a cooler at a minimum cost.

This refrigerator consists of a wooden frame covered with Canton flannel and a heavy duck. It is desirable that the frame be screened, although this is not necessary. Wicks, made of the same material as the covering, resting in a pan of water on top of the cooler, conduct the water over the sides and ends of the pan and allow it to seep down the sides of the box. The evaporation from this moistened covering causes a lower temperature inside. On hot days, a temperature of fifty degrees has been known to be obtained in the cooler. This is the way to build it:

Make a screened case 3½ feet high with the other dimensions 12 by 15 inches. If a solid top is used, simply place the water pan on this. Open the top frame and support it by one-inch cleats fastened to the inside of the frame. Place two movable shelves in the frame 12 to 15 inches apart. Use a biscuit pan 12 by 14 inches on the top to hold the water, and where the refrigerator is to be used, have the whole thing standing in a large pan to catch any drip. The pans and case may be painted white, allowed to dry and then enameled. A covering of white Canton flannel should be made to fit the frame. Have the smooth side out and button the covering on the frame with buggy or automobile curtain hooks and eyes, arranged so that the door can be opened without unfastening these hooks. This can easily be done by putting one row of hooks on the edge of the door near the latch and the other just opposite the opening, with the hem on each side extending far enough to cover the crack at the edge of the door so as to keep out the warmth outside air and retain the cool air. This dress or covering will have to be hooked around the top edge also. Two double strips one-half the width of each side should be sewed on the top of each side of the frame and allowed to extend over about 2½ to 3 inches in a pan of water. The bottom of the covering should extend over the lower pan.

Place the refrigerator in a shaded place where air will circulate around it freely. If buttons and buttonholes are used on the Canton flannel instead of buggy hooks, the cost will be reduced.

THE TABLE.

Mock Chili Con Carne—One can tomatoes, one can kidney beans, one-half pound hamburger, one onion. Fry hamburger and onion together in plenty of grease, then turn into pan with which tomatoes and beans are cooking. Season with salt and a dash of red pepper; let simmer one-half hour.

Chili Con Carne—One tablespoon butter, one onion, one green pepper, one can tomatoes, one can kidney beans, one pound ground steak, salt to taste. Melt butter, cut onion and green pepper and cook until tender; add tomatoes and let cook to boil; add beans and bring to boil; add meat and salt and cook one-half hour. Add chili powder and serve. Will serve six people.

Apple-Bread Pudding—Six apples, three cups bread crumbs, three-fourths cup sugar, cinnamon. Grease baking dish. Pare apples and slice a layer in pan. Add a layer of bread crumbs, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Alternate layers until pan is full, with crumbs on top. Pour two cups water over this and bake twenty minutes, or until apples are tender. Pudding sauce: One cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, juice one-half lemon. Mix sugar and cornstarch dry. Add one pint boiling water, stir until smooth. Boil three minutes, remove from fire, add lemon juice and butter.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

Eleanor tossed her head over. "I never heard that war times or high prices kept people from falling in love," retorted Eleanor. Her husband did not reply. He sat looking into space with a deep pucker between his eyes.

"You know we have broken off relations with Germany; I greatly fear that means war."

"Surely not." "I don't know. Many believe it has got to come; if it does—

"You think Friedly would volunteer?" asked Eleanor, dropping her hands in her lap.

"I am sure of it. He would, and a man who has such grave matters on his mind, is not thinking of falling in love."

"Oh, I don't know," answered Eleanor easily. "I have heard of such things as this, but just such things as this, as Douglass continued to read."

"What is the matter tonight?" she continued, for her husband did not reply but sat moodily looking into space.

"I was wondering what was going to become of us. Everything we eat, drink or wear is going up so alarmingly. Coal is so high that it is like burning gold and very hard to get."

"Do you know sometimes I cannot sleep for thinking what would become of all of us if I should drop out of it suddenly?"

"Don't talk so much about us any way."

"Humph!" returned Douglas. "It is a poor living I succeed in giving you, but it would be infinitely harder if you had to do alone."

"You are blue. Cheer up! We are very happy people, if we do have to

REAL DEBTS OF HONOR.

There is a certain familiar phrase in this case there is not even a meaning given—"debts of honor."

The old meaning, as everyone knows, is gambling debts. Those are the debts which, according to the masculine code of honor, a man must pay though he leave his wife, his landlord, his tailor unbroken.

I suppose the idea is that the butcher, or the landlord, or the tailor has the law on his side, whereas the man who holds the card debt has the promise to pay as his only security, and therefore that promise should be broken.

Are Doctors' Bills Treated As Debts Of Honor?

But take the case of a doctor. Until the last few years it was a matter of professional honor with doctors not to sue. They also depended solely on the patient's promise to pay. And were held to be considered as debts of honor. Not by good people, I personally know a doctor who after long years of service in the community died poor. His two daughters had to fend for themselves, for his chief legacy was thousands of dollars worth of outlawed debts.

Now the new meaning that I'd like to give to "debts of honor" is that "fine phrase" is "debts of gratitude."

AGAIN TAKE TUNNEL
UNDER THE CHANNEL

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE

London, May 16.—Departure of a train from London to Paris every five or ten minutes, travel between the two capitals by rail to occur less than six hours, was the possibility laid out by Sir Francis Fox in an address recently delivered before the Royal Geographical society. Sir Francis was describing the conditions under which it was proposed to build and operate a tunnel under the English channel to connect England and France.

Looking into the future, he declared that the trains operated through the tunnel could be used to traverse France, Belgium, Holland, Spain, Italy, Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Turkey as far as Constantinople. It was his pleasure to tell that the tunnel would be able to reach distant places like India and China through the medium of the channel tunnel.

The tunnel would consist of two tubes eighteen feet in diameter. In the channel above the sea bed the maximum depth of water would be 160 feet. It would be necessary to lay a cover of chalk over the roof of the tunnel to guard against any possible hostile contingency. That protection had been fixed at a minimum of 100 feet. The tunnel would be operated, pumped and ventilated by electricity supplied from Dover station in Kent, England.

The tunnel would have a dip in the middle of the rails, forming a water lock, by which it could, in case of emergency, be filled with water from roof to floor for one mile. This would be under control of Dover Castle and the entrance and exit would be under gunfire of the Dover forts.

SO DON'T WASTE SMALLEST PARTICLE

Washington, May 16.—An ounce of meat wasted each day by every family in the United States would send 875,000 steers or 3,000,000 hogs into the garbage cans in a year, the department of agriculture estimated today in a food thrift bulletin, a part of the government's war program of food conservation.

NORTHERN BAPTISTS MEET IN CLEVELAND

Governor Philipp has signed the bill permitting circuit court clerks of the state to appoint as deputies men or women. It has been the practice in many instances of the state to appoint a woman as a deputy clerk of the circuit court. Because of the uncertainty in the statute on this subject, the legislature believed it advisable to make law making the authority certain. The executive department has also been given to bill exempting from execution any automobile used or kept for the purpose of the debtor's trade or business, not exceeding $400 in value.

Many conservative advertisers are using the classified columns. They and it pays.

DELAY ACTION ON BILL TO REGULATE WAREHOUSE SITES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 16.—The senate has delayed action for one week on the J. C. Hanson bill giving the railroad commission power to pass on the subject of warehouse sites. The question was the subject of an hour's debate in the senate on Tuesday. At a noon session of the senate transportation committee, Carl D. Jackson of the railroad commission was called to give his opinion on the policy of the bill. Commissioner Jackson stated that he believed the bill was unconstitutional. In support of his opinion he pointed out that he had just discovered a United States supreme court decision which held that such a law in effect confiscated railroad property. The decision was given in a Nebraska case where an attempt was made to warehouse sites.

To Consult Attorney General.
When the senate reconvened late yesterday afternoon, Senator H. A. Skogrof of Dane county moved that further action on the bill be deferred until next Tuesday. He stated that in the meantime he would submit the question of the constitutionality of the bill to the attorney general for an opinion. The letter to the attorney general will also ask whether congress through the interstate commerce commission has assumed jurisdiction over the warehouses operated along railroad lines.

If the bill is found to be unconstitutional an attempt will be made to so amend it as to free it from legal infirmities. Several of the advocates of the bill are still of the opinion that relief can be obtained by limiting the scope of the measure. The letter to Attorney General was asking for his opinion on the measure when it was submitted on Wednesday. The J. C. Hanson bill has the backing of the Wisconsin equity society.

Are Making Progress.
That progress is being made in the legislature in the disposition of bills indicated by the detailed reports of the houses. Of the 670 bills that have been introduced into the assembly at the commencement of the session with the various measures in for consideration in the house, the records show that 273 assembly bills have been passed, and 23 have been indefinitely postponed, and 23 have been withdrawn. Of the 273 bills which have passed the assembly, 116 have been concurred in by the senate, 14 have been non-concurred and one has been vetoed by the governor. The same report indicates that the senate is a week or ten days behind the house in the consideration of the measures. Of the 656 bills that have been introduced in the senate, 171 remain to be considered, which is twice the number still pending in the house. The best record made in the ten days has been a disposition of about 140 bills, as well as by either house. Of the senate bills introduced 275 have been passed, 34 have been indefinitely postponed, 34 have been withdrawn and 143 of the 275 which have been passed by the senate, have been concurred in by the assembly. The senate has non-concurred in twenty-three assembly bills.

Joint Resolutions.
Numerous joint resolutions have been introduced in each house. Of the sixty-five senate joint resolutions, seven are still before the upper house. Ninety assembly joint resolutions have been offered, of which thirty-three have been indefinitely postponed and six remain to be considered. Two senate resolutions remain in the house for consideration, and nine assembly resolutions remain in the senate for consideration. That the senate intends to overtake the assembly with in the coming ten days is indicated by the long calendar of bills which are being considered at this week's session. So far the attendance in the lower house has been small this week. Many of the farmers are home planting corn.

SENATE TO ACT ON MOTHERS' PENSION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 16.—The amended mother pension bill, which has been the subject of extended hearings for the last three months, was submitted to the senate last night and will probably get onto the senate calendar Friday for consideration. The bill broadens the scope of the present mother pension. Under the present law, the substitute bill submitted to the committee the juvenile or circuit judge may cause an investigation to be made before aid is granted. To assist in making investigations the judge shall on July 1, 1917, appoint a board of child welfare for the county, who shall office at the pleasure of the judge making the appointment. This board shall consist of three members. They shall receive no salary, but shall be paid their actual expenses.

The bill provides that this board shall establish a basis of household expenses and to compute the amount of aid to be extended to a needy family. The board shall help needy mothers expend this aid economically, advise with them in keeping an account of the expenses and confer with the court relative to a continuance of the aid.

Aid will be granted to a divorced mother. This idea was suggested originally in a bill offered by Senator Timothy Burke of Green Bay. Such divorced or deserted women provisions show that she can use all provisions of law to secure support if the court shall be of the opinion that such procedure on her part is of no avail.

Under the old law aid could not be given to a deserted mother within one year. The present bill places the limitation at six months. To obtain aid under the bill the mother or her parents or other persons who seek aid for the child must have resided in the same place one year and in the county in which the application is made for six months prior to the date of application.

The bill was presented to the senate by Senator Skogrof.

Who's Who In The Wisconsin Legislature

When Frank Raguse, Socialist member of the senate from Milwaukee, was threatened with expulsion from that body unless he gave them a satisfactory apology, Senator Louis Arnold, Milwaukee Socialist colleague of Raguse, tried to smooth things over by acting as the medium between Raguse and the indignant senators who were trying to force the former's retirement.

Arnold pacified the opposition to Raguse and got them to offer their reasons of what constituted an apology. Though this proved unacceptable to Raguse and he was finally expelled, Arnold's act of loyalty to Raguse earned warm condemnation from other members.

Arnold was real estate dealing when he was elected to the senate. He has since given his business to a considerable extent in an effort to do his work in the senate and see to it that "big business" corporation lobbyists, and the legislative joker isn't slipped over on the "plain people."

Senator L. E. Cunningham, who is listed in the senate as a contractor from Beloit, plays politics better. In his thinks it's a "good game."

Senator Cunningham has been playing the game all his life.

He was an alderman in the city of Beloit for eighteen years, a member of the school board for about ten more, was mayor of the city for eight years, and is now serving his second term as senator from the second district.

Cunningham also represents Janesville, enjoying the distinction of serving two of the leading second class cities of the state.

Cunningham's particular hobby is getting legislation for crippled children and fathering highway legislation. His friend humorously remarks that all his legislation is for the benefit of crippled or to prevent things from being crippled. In that the highway bill will result in roads that will reduce punctured and make easy traveling for the weary horse.

Aid will be granted to a divorced mother. This idea was suggested originally in a bill offered by Senator Timothy Burke of Green Bay. Such divorced or deserted women provisions show that she can use all provisions of law to secure support if the court shall be of the opinion that such procedure on her part is of no avail.

To obtain aid under the bill the mother or her parents or other persons who seek aid for the child must have resided in the same place one year and in the county in which the application is made for six months prior to the date of application.

The bill was presented to the senate by Senator Skogrof.

JIM THORPE SHOWS SIGNS OF ABILITY

Jim Thorpe, the most famous athlete of them all, seems about ready to take his place as the first great all-around athlete who ever has become a major league baseball player of ability. Jim is hitting them far and wide, the Reds in the absence of Eddie Reuland and, although he hasn't yet set really marked time, he has a better chance of becoming a regular than he ever did while filling a Giant uniform.

John McGraw, leader of the Giants, always has predicted that Thorpe would be a star if given the opportunity to play every day. All he needed, McGraw contended, was major league experience. He believed firmly that a man who could do such amazing things in other sports could learn to hit and play outfield.

Thorpe has been picked out as a "sucker for a curve ball," of which there are an amazing number drawing pay in the major. Pitchers have simply curve-balled him out of a job with the Giants. He couldn't play.

Thorpe never really played ball before becoming a member of the New York team in 1913. He had played professional baseball and had taken part in some college games, but his experience was sadly illluminated until he came under the eye of McGraw.

His 1913 batting average was .433 but he took part in only nineteen games. The next year he was in thirty games and batted .394. Seventeen games the following year gave him a mark of .391.

Thorpe begged to be sent to some minor league club so he could get experience after these poor averages.

WALTER JOHNSON'S POOR START MOVES SOME TO ASK, "IS HE ON THE SLIDE?"

Two views of the divine Walter.

Walter Johnson's poor start this season has moved many to wonder whether he is ready to have a decline. So far the opposition have managed to get an average of about .300 in an inning off Walter's delivery, which would indicate that his effectiveness this spring is well behind that of last season. The Red Sox and Yankees have both beaten him and found him rather easy to hit.

cult than that of the Pacific Coast league, where he was sent to bunt fences for several seasons past. Walter batted .265 for his first nineteen games, but he is expected to take a brace.

Manager Bill Donovan is more enthusiastic about his team than are some of its critics, who complain that his outfield is not hitting, and that his catching might be better than it is. The infield and the pitchers, it seems, are satisfactory to all hands.

George Sisler of the Browns has the distinction of being the first player in the major leagues to reach the quarter century mark in base hits this season. Sisler is hitting better than ever before, not to mention his stellar work on the bases and in the field.

Manager Roger Bresnahan of the Toledo club has returned from the Bankston to the Yankees and the latter club has returned him to Richmond. He was one of the stars of Billy Smith's Richmond club last season.

Joe Judge, the New York boy who is playing first base for Washington, is doing fine work with the stick for Griffith's team. He batted well in all the games of the recent Yankee-Senators series and his fielding was also high class.

Bertie Niehoff, according to Pat Moran, is the best second baseman in the National league, not excepting the crippled Herzog.

Wade Killifer is playing fast ball for Frank Chance's Los Angeles club which is in last place.

Fritz Coumbe of the Cleveland Indians says the colder the weather the better he pitches, and that if there was a league in Alaska or Siberia he would be a star performer in it. Probably it wasn't cold enough for him when the White Sox finally, after many trials, took his measure.

GOVERNOR MAY VETO LIQUOR REFERENDUM

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE

Madison, Wis., May 16.—The report is current in legislative circles that Governor Philipp may veto the Evjue liquor referendum bill. This report has grown more persistent in the past twenty-four hours. It is even reported that the governor will give as his reason the statement that the submission of the question at this time is inopportune.

Governor Philipp yesterday afternoon gave an audience to about twenty-five people who came from several towns in the state to protest against the signing of the bill. This delegation was taken to the executive chamber by Assembyman Frank B. Metcalfe, Milwaukee, who was one of the principal opponents of the bill on the floor of the house.

From other sources it is learned that scores of letters from leading business men in all sections of the state have been sent to the governor in the past thirty-six hours asking him to sign the measure. The Evjue bill is expected to reach the governor today. He must take action within six days, Sundays not included.

GERMANS MAY USE
LIBAU AS BASE FOR DRIVE ON PETROGRAD

Washington, D. C., May 15.—Libau, the Baltic seaport from which, according to recent advices, the Germans are threatening to make a drive on Petrograd, is described by the National Geographic society's war geographer in his bulletin issued today.

"There has been a settlement at Libau for many centuries. At first it was only a fishing village, the seafarers being attracted by the excellent harbor. As early as the middle of the 13th century it had become a possession of the Livonian Brothers of the Sword. At the beginning of the 15th century it was burned by the Lithuanians, and 150 years later was given in pawn to a Prussian duke. In 1701 Charles XII of Sweden captured Libau and assessed its citizens for the expense incurred in fortifying it. It became a Russian possession in 1713. Seven years later, McDonald, who was then marshal of the Russian army, had a fortification built on the island of Wagram by piercing the Austrian center and saving the day for the French, occupied the place with the Prussians in the disastrous Moscow campaign.

"In times of peace Libau enjoys a certain degree of popularity as a seafaring resort, and there is a fortification passenger steamer service connecting it with Copenhagen, Stettin, Riga and Petrograd. It is also connected with Riga by rail, and with Riga's most productive wheat regions and forest lands.
